

IRELAND STAPLETON ANNOUNCES NEW ASSOCIATE – NICHOLAS A. MURRAY

Denver, CO (October 28, 2011) – Ireland Stapleton is pleased to announce that Nicholas A. Murray has joined the firm as an associate. Murray will advise clients on a variety of legal issues, including business and real estate transactions, employment law and litigation.

“We are delighted to add Nick to our growing team at Ireland Stapleton,” says K.C. Groves, co-managing director of the firm. “This year we celebrate our 85th anniversary. As we look forward, we know that it is the next generation of lawyers like Nick that will allow us to define Colorado’s legal landscape well into the future.”

Murray is a 2011 graduate of the University of Denver, Sturm College of Law. Prior to joining Ireland Stapleton, he worked as an Intellectual Property litigation clerk at K&L Gates. As a third year law student, Murray led a team in the Environmental Law Clinic, working on a complex Clean Air Act case against Public Service Company of Colorado. As a student attorney, he drafted various pre-trial motions, took and defended expert depositions, and argued in front of federal Magistrate Judge Michael Hegarty. His work led to several successes in the still-pending suit. In addition to practicing law, Murray is a member of the Mile High Weimaraner Rescue.
